Description of Proposed Districts

Generally speaking, the proposed Yakima district is composed of Kittitas county, the city of Yakima and that part of Yakima county north of the city of Yakima and east of the Yakima river including the firing range. This is basically an upper Yakima river district. In the context of central Washington, Kittitas county can hardly be considered an agricultural county. The value of its agricultural production in 2007 was about 5% of the value in Yakima and Grant counties. It is the only county in the state in which the product providing the highest value is hay. While Kittitas county and the city of Yakima undoubtedly have significant agricultural interests, there are a lot of other things going on in both places which differentiate them from the agricultural regions adjacent to them. A majority of the population of Kittitas county lives in the greater Ellensburg area, which is only half as far from Yakima as it is from Moses Lake.

Generally speaking, the proposed Moses Lake district is composed of Adams and Lincoln counties, the southeastern part of Grant county, and that part of Spokane county north of the Union Pacific railroad and south of Hallett Road to the airport and Thorpe Road west of the airport, and all of Franklin county outside the city of Pasco, and a small part of the city of Pasco. This combines all of the agricultural areas of Franklin county into a single district with similar agricultural areas of counties to the north.

The proposed Wenatchee district is composed of Chelan and Douglas counties and the northwestern part of Grant county, including Quincy, Ephrata, Soap Lake, Hartline and the Grand Coulee communities.
